

How to Use: JSTOR

- Alfred C. O'Connell Library –

JSTOR offers a high-quality, interdisciplinary archive of over one thousand leading academic journals across the humanities, social sciences, and sciences, as well as select monographs and other materials valuable for academic work. It is full-text searchable including image captions, and is interlinked by millions of citations and references.

PLEASE NOTE that JSTOR IS UNIQUE among GCC's article databases ... HOW?

Its contents are generally NOT RECENT, often being at least 3 to 5 years old with some having originated as early as the 19th century. In a subject such as history, older material may be desirable, but that is not always true.

Before using JSTOR:

Determine the publication dates required for your research assignment's information sources.

JSTOR's default search mode is ADVANCED SEARCH.

The screenshot shows the JSTOR Advanced Search page. At the top, there are links for "View Tutorial" and "Search Help". The main search area contains several input fields. The first field contains the text "civil war". To the right of the search fields are three dropdown menus for search criteria, each followed by a connector dropdown menu (AND, OR, NOT). The first dropdown menu is set to "full-text". A callout box points to the search fields with the text "Leave blank! Keep your search within JSTOR". Below the search fields is a checkbox labeled "Search for links to items outside of JSTOR" with a red question mark icon. A "Search" button is located below the checkbox. A callout box points to the "Search" button with the text "CLICK to search only journal articles". Below the "Search" button is the "Limit to:" section, which includes a "Type:" dropdown menu with options: Article (checked), Review, Editorial, and Pamphlet. A callout box points to the "Article" checkbox with the text "To search publication date or date range". Below the "Type:" section is the "Date Range:" section, which includes "From:" and "To:" input fields. The "From:" field contains "1901/01/01" and the "To:" field contains "2009/03/31". A callout box points to the "To:" field with the text "To search publication date or date range". Below the "Date Range:" section is a note: "(specify dates as yyyy, yyyy/mm, or yyyy/mm/dd)". To the right of the search criteria dropdown menus is a callout box with the text "Choices are AND, OR, NOT".

To Search:

- 1) Start by placing a checkmark in the ARTICLE box. WHY? To obtain only ARTICLES and avoid BOOK REVIEWS, EDITORIALS, and PAMPHLETS.
- 2) Select where to search - the full-text, author, item title, abstract, or caption (for images) – and select a connector (AND, OR, NOT) when searching more than one thing.
- 3) Use quotation marks to search a phrase such as “sleep deprivation” or “gattling gun.”
- 4) The Search for links to items outside of JSTOR function is NOT RECOMMENDED. Uncheck it in order to keep your search within JSTOR.
- 5) Enter an author's name as follows - “mary nash” or “james d. fearon.”
- 6) You may LIMIT a search by discipline/s (history, philosophy etc.), publication type or publication date.

Ethnicity, Insurgency, and Civil War
 JAMES D. FEARON and DAVID D. LAITIN Stanford University

An influential conventional wisdom holds that civil wars proliferated rapidly with the end of the Cold War and that the root cause of many or most of these has been ethnic and religious
